April is "Minority Health Awareness Month" and the SOC will be taking a multi-level approach to this critically important issue. Through a series of four presentations, health disparities will be explored in-depth from the perspectives of race, ethnicity, poverty, and disabilities. This will NOT simply be a regurgitation of what you already know, rather it will examine current data, resources that are not commonly known (but should be), and conclude with a thorough discussion of how to begin the work to close these noted disparities. Minority Health Awareness should not be and will not be limited to a single month!
