March is "Developmental Disabilities Awareness Month," and this month we will highlight the contributions of people with developmental disabilities, raise awareness of inclusion, and address barriers to full community participation. For more information about this important cause, please refer to: <https://nacdd.org/ddam1/>. Our March presentations will further focus on educational and social supports and resources that help people with disabilities achieve their goals. In March, people are encouraged to wear orange to show support for education, employment, and full community participation for individuals with conditions such as autism, ADHD, or cerebral palsy.
