June is in part recognized for being "Pride Month", a celebration of culture, identity, and visibility advocating for equal rights. What is not often given enough focus is the fact that LGBTQ+ youth face disproportionately high rates of suicide attempts, often 2-4 times higher than their heterosexual peers. Recent data shows over 40% of LGBTQ+ youth seriously considered suicide in the past year, driven by bullying, discrimination, and family rejection. This month's presentations will address these issues and highlight resources for youth and families. More details to follow.
